

More gift picks from our panel

Here are more "10 Ways of Christmas" gift picks for the home chosen by our design aficionados — Frank Pintak, Orla Kiely, Lisa Hirschfeld, Scott Wilson and Lisa Alterberry and Lisa Cole.

Lisa Shultz

Chicago City editor for Metropolitan Home magazine and regular contributor to the Chicago Tribune

Under $25 pick: French-style candlesticks from Anthropologie have the finishing-year look right while costing less than many could cost more.

Why liked? "They come in a couple colors — silver and rose gold — and look just like brass ones from the 1950s that now cost a fortune at antique stores. Choose a bunch of the brassier ones and use them for serving salads, pastries, etc."

For whom? "Everyone deserves that perfect holiday gift — old mom with candy."

Details: $14.95 at Anthropologie

Under $100 pick: Different hand-built bowls (and vases) I powdered glittered.

Why liked? "It looks like a personal bowl, but it captures sand (or water) and fragrance from (or to) itself. Hand-glazed (MPR) pieces, like, are pristine, elegant, and their colors are wonderful. It's a special gift that connects with a soul giving experience."

For whom? "Everybody, really. You can give it to your parents, mom & dad?"

Details: Comes in eight colors, glossy black and glossy white, both $85 for the base (and, but the Holiday Special (including shipping) includes the base with plus one color paint for $100. Purchase the vase (plus the colors) separately only if you'd like to see the well-refined, hand-painted.

Under $100 pick: White ceramic bowl from Anthropologie.

Why liked? "I love this as a home or office decoration for Anthropologie fans and thought it was a gift because some or something super sophisticated."

For whom? "Someone sophisticated."

Details: $100 through Anthropologie.com and with free U.S. flat-rate shipping. (Or, the site, anthropologie.com, uses code: CHRISTMAS100 off of pretty items.)

Aquatic Features

Under $25 pick: Small Lotus Flower Dish, metal with gold-trimmed leaves, 3 inches in diameter.

Why liked? "It's the perfect gift with a lot of style and a little bit of whimsy to boot."

For whom? "I would give this to my son. He has an Avant-Garde getting-up-in-the-living-room-and-playing-guitar-and-candy during the holidays."

Details: $14 at Japan Home & Garden, 1800 N. Clybourn Ave., 312-226-1000; japanhomeandgarden.com.

Under $100 pick: Yang Zhou Lamp, 40 inches tall, a bronze-based, copper-based, and blackened-copper-style shade.

Why liked? "This lamp has a special organic look that can get students-to-cooking."

For whom? "It gives this lamp its big boy 12-year-old cousin who just moved into his first place."

Details: $70 for a similar solid shade. Visit yangzhou.com to view other models by the artist. Call 847-884-1000 to inquire about commissioning a piece of your own.

— Molly Wenzel, mwenzel@tribune.com

Under $25 pick: 14-karat gold diamond engagement pendant by David Yurman.

Why liked? "Personalized gifts are always the best, and this takes the concept one step further by transforming one of your most treasured moments into a custom-hand-crafted piece of art."

For whom? "You could consider a personalized portrait of your mom and dad ... and doggo ... and even grandkids."

Details: $700 for a similar solid piece. Visit davidyurman.com to view other models by the artist. Call 847-884-1000 to inquire about commissioning a piece of your own.

When we turned to design aficionados for gift-giving guidance, beautiful presents for the home came in:

- 3) 'Sky's the limit'

By Karen Klepper and Shelly Wunderlich

(Karen is a Tribune reporter)

There's something catchy and warm and fuzzy about "home for the holidays." Perhaps at no time of the year do we feel the architecture that shelters us to make a living way — and somehow, magically, for the next six weeks or so overlook its shortcomings, the faulty gutters, the leaky windows, etc.

And so, in this spirit of loving the homes that nurture us, we thought it appropriate to come up with timely gifts for the holidays. Gifts to give to others (or to ourselves), for our places and spaces and urges to nest.

We thought it equally appropriate to consult with six design pros for their thoughts on the subject. Meet our experts — Frank Fontana, Ohi Meseata, Lisa Skotnik, Scott Wilson, and Lisa Atherberry and Dina Calo — and check out their picks for creative homemade gifts.

Tricks and treats for fast fix-ups

By Leslie Mann | Special to the Tribune

What do Q-tips, puppy-training pads and make-up sponges have in common? They are among the home-repair tools that are handy but cannot be found in a hardware store. Q-tips make great, disposable paint brushes for touch-ups. Use leftover puppy-training pads as drop cloths for small jobs. Make-up sponges, sold in bricks of 32 for $2, double as throw-away applicators for spackling compound, caulk or paint. For more non-tool tools, we polled the experts. Here are their favorites:

Old tile grout and paint

Mix one part grout with three parts paint and you have instant chalkboard paint.

—Frank Fontana

Soap of cardboard

This makes a free furniture slide that protects your floors.

—Mike Veseth

Bleach

Put a bleach-soaked rag on a great joint overnight to remove mold.

—Eric Stromer

Hair dryer

Use the dryer to quickly dry lap-top compound when you patch drywall.

—Endi Baranek

Toothpaste

It removes stains from linoleum or vinyl floors.

—Jim Mandelberg

Coca-Cola

This removes rust from metal.

—Jim Mandelberg

Ziploc bag

Use tape to secure it around your smoke detector to protect it from dust when you remodel. And, use it to store your paint brush overnight, roll-paint jars.

—Bob Conroy

Bifocal glasses

When you are working on something over your head, like a ceiling light fixture, turn your bifocals upside down so the reading part is on the top.

—David Owen

Murphy's Oil Soap

Mix with water and spray the mixture on your yard to deter mosquitoes.

—Jim Donavan

Old newspapers

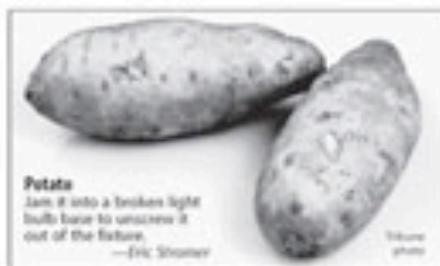

Layer five sheets thick in the garden for a weed barrier.

—Ted Ramei

Kids' school eraser
Use it to remove scuff marks from linoleum.

—Endi Baranek

Potato
Jam it into a broken light bulb base to unclog it out of the fixture.

—Eric Stromer

Liquid dish soap
Dip your finger in it before you apply caulk and you will make a smooth bead.

—Cheryl Olszewski

After connecting appliances to natural gas sources, spread the soap on all connections. It will bubble at the source if there is a leak.

—Mike Godzik

Coffee and tea

Brew some of each, mix and cool. Then you have a homemade stain for wood.

—Frank Fontana

Bar of soap
Rub it on the glides of a drawer that sticks to make it slide in and out smoothly.

—Soren Springer

Do you have a handy tip that you'd like to share with our readers? E-mail yourplace@tribune.com.

Candle wax

Drip some in an old screen hole before putting a screen back in. The wax will seal it.

—Greg Buttenhausen

Old garden hose

Put a piece of it over a bucket handle for a grip that's easier on your hands.

—Tom Silva

Shoe polish

Match it to a scratch in your wooden floor or furniture, rub it in and buff it.

—Tom Silva

Old dental tools

Use them for canaries when you strip old woodwork.

—Tahitha Lang

Electric leaf blower

Use it to clear lint out of your clothes dryer base. First, disconnect the base in the house and make sure the exterior screen is removed.

—Mike Roper

Toothpick
Stuff it into a stripped hole before returning an old screen.

—Soren Springer

Cool decor doesn't have to break the bank

By Valerie Vedral
FOR RED EYE

There's nothing like that first apartment and the freedom that comes with living on your own.

Now that you answer to a landlord, though, that means bland walls and boring decor, right? Not so, says Frank Fontana, host of HGTV's "Design on a Dime," which begins its Chicago-based shows on March 31. The interior designer offers some tips for first-time renters who want an inspired space without breaking the bank.

"No. 1 is checking in with your landlord as far as what you're allowed to do," Fontana told RedEye on Wednesday.

Fontana, who rented a loft when he moved to Chicago last year to begin filming episodes, has created an eclectic interior design there featuring Venetian plaster, stencils and other finishes.

An easy, inexpensive way to decorate is to add color or texture to the walls, Fontana said. It's the best way to create the biggest bang for your buck, he said. Don't be afraid of bold, darker colors or faux finishes, either.

Fontana recommended renters pick a focal wall—a center of attention—and give that wall special treatment. It's subtle, he said, but it works.

» What's hot these days in hip living spaces? Fontana said Venetian plaster and, believe it or not, black walls.

"I'm one of those designers that really does not play by the rules," he said. "Anything you put in front of [a black wall] will really pop."

Crown molding also makes an impact and doesn't have to be costly. Fontana said you can find MDF, or multi-density fiberboard, molding for a bargain at hardware stores. Renters also can use MDF to decorate the walls by putting up strips of the wood and then painting them and the wall a uniform color. It's a quick way to add texture, Fontana said.

A tip from Frank

When shopping for your new place, make sure to bring measurements along, said HGTV host Frank Fontana. It's a tough lesson to learn when the crown molding is too short or your new furniture purchase doesn't fit in your room. [V.V.]

» What about the furniture? Don't go out and spend full price on new furniture, Fontana said. IKEA has great deals, he said, adding that another way to score good deals is to shop "scratch and dent" or clearance sales, where you can often find amazing pieces at a fraction of the cost.

Fontana said it also pays to politely ask store managers to put you on an e-mail or mailing list for advance notice on sales. "That's how you get the best deals," he said. "You have to be a little hustler, kind of."

» Have old furniture that has to work in a new place? Funk it up, Fontana said. Find a slipcover for older but functional sofas. Paint accessories or lamps to match the decor. "A simple solution to old hand-me-downs is to paint it all black. It's totally hip and now," he said. "I don't think anything should ever be thrown out."

» What about the walls? Accessories and art are essential part of design too. Fontana is a fan of homemade art, so he recommends hitting up friends who might be photographers or artists and asking for something to display. It's an easy way to get one-of-a-kind artwork for your new place.

"I don't fit the stereotype of a decorator."

Frank Fontana's life reads like the script of "Rocky." Or it would if Rocky Balboa had been pulling fabric swatches instead of punches. "I don't fit the stereotype of a decorator," says the freshly minted host of HGTV's Chicago-based "Design on a Dime." In fact, Fontana's alpha-male demeanor and bodybuilder's physique (he actually wears a tight "Italian Stallion" T-shirt) threw the producers of the 2004 ABC reality show "The Great Domestic Showdown" for a loop during auditions. Says Fontana: "When I walked in they said, 'Is this guy for real?' I was the underdog of the entire thing." But just like his alter ego, Fontana unexpectedly took the title. Today he continues to champion the impossible by taking sorry-looking, real-life rooms and smartening them up for their owners—always for under $1,000—with the help of his "Design on a Dime" assistants, Kelly Edwards and Ali Azhar. "I want to shake it up a little in Chicago," says the transplanted New Yorker. —Lisa Cregan

Inspiration >> Shabby chic beach cottage

1. A "focal wall" is created of pine planks pointed with a 50:50 mix of white primer and water (it looks like professional pickling, but is much less costly). The French-wide whitewashed pine trim frames the whole room—a subtle touch that adds warmth.
2. Desk and shelf of reclaimed barn wood from American Barn Company (3800 N. Clark St.) are cleverly whitewashed for a weathered look.
3. The genius of this shadowbox is that the display can be rotated with the seasons—summer flowers, autumn leaves, even holiday candles.
4. Converted Home Depot outdoor lanterns hang on plant hangers, keeping the mood casual while providing accent lighting to the wall.
5. The owner's trundle bed is painted antique white and distressed to keep with the shabby chic theme.
6. Pillows from Bed Bath & Beyond bring a pretty robin's-egg blue to the mix and pull in the wall color.
7. Walls in a soft buttery cream (Benjamin Moore #2023-60) have a "sunrise summer day" vibe.

Inspiration >> Old American

1. $100 table and chairs from craigslist were refinished in ebony and plum to match the homeowner's hutch.
2. The unusual chandelier is actually a reclaimed old window frame embellished with stained glass and candles (the candles rest on a sheet of Plexiglas).
3. A reclaimed closet door, its center portion replaced with stained glass and softly lit from behind, becomes wall art.
4. Ikat mirror with a fold-down shelf holds twinkling tea lights in tiny multicolored Chinese bowls.
5. Ikat hurricane lamps keep with the Colonial theme.
6. Oak bark (brought in sheets on eBay) is glued onto a plastic container and filled with dried blooms to bring the outside in.
